Westport Country Playhouse Schedules Post-Show Discussions Open to the Community on “Doubt: A Parable”

In conjunction with the staging of “Doubt: A Parable,” Westport Country Playhouse will present four post-show discussions featuring community guests who deal closely with issues addressed in the play, on November 11, 12, 16, and 19. The post-show discussions will provide audience members the opportunity to respond to “Doubt: A Parable,” a drama about a nun’s suspicion of a priest’s behavior. The discussions are free-of-charge and open to the public; a ticket to “Doubt: A Parable” is not required to attend the discussions. Attendees must be masked and show proof of vaccination.

Liam Lonagan, Playhouse assistant artistic director, will moderate. “With a play that naturally engenders such a strong audience response, we felt it was necessary to create a safe space for our community to dialogue after the performance,” said Lonagan. “This group of guests, curated by Jenny Nelson, the Playhouse’s Roz and Bud Siegel director of education and community engagement, will help us connect the play to issues of faith, truth, and doubt in our world today.”

Community facilitators include Beth McCabe, co-leader for Connecticut chapter of SNAP (Survivors Network of Those Abused by Priests), on Thursday, November 11, following the 8 p.m. performance; Mark Fuller, member of SNAP, on Friday, November 12, following the 8 p.m. performance; Lucy Gellman, editor, The Arts Paper, on Tuesday, November 16, following the 7 p.m. performance; and Thomas Burke, associate minister of children, youth, and families, Norfield Congregational Church, following the Friday, November 19, 8 p.m. performance. Discussions will begin approximately 90 minutes after the performance’s starting time. They will not be streamed or recorded; they are dialogues with the audience, rather than a Q&A or presentation. Winner of 2005 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and Tony Award® for Best Play, “Doubt: A Parable” marks the Playhouse’s first live theatrical production since 2019. It runs from November 2 through November 20. A performance will also be filmed on stage for on-demand streaming in HD video from November 11 through November 21. Written by John Patrick Shanley and directed by David Kennedy, Playhouse associate artistic director, “Doubt: A Parable” will culminate the Playhouse’s 90th anniversary year.

“Doubt: A Parable” is about Sister Aloysius, a school principal with a mandate to uphold tradition. She is certain something’s terribly wrong about the relationship between a young parish priest and a troubled boy. But beneath her moral crusade to reveal the horrible truth lies a chasm of doubt, where choices made can reverberate beyond imagination. For more information, visit: www.westportplayhouse.org/doubt

Playwright John Patrick Shanley won the 1988 Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay for the film “Moonstruck.” He wrote and directed the film adaptation of his play, “Doubt,” and earned a nomination

The production of “Doubt: A Parable” is sponsored by the Eunice and David Bigelow Foundation, and Judy and Scott Phares, with additional support from the Burry Fredrik Foundation. The 2021 season is generously supported by the Eunice and David Bigelow Foundation. 2021 season Media Sponsors are Moffly Media and WSHU Public Radio.

Last year, the global pandemic shut down the Playhouse’s 2020 Season. During 2021, the Playhouse has produced online, outdoors, and on the radio as pandemic safety concerns prevented staging live theater. Easing guidelines at federal, state, and local levels, as well as those of theatrical unions, has allowed in-person theatrical productions to resume. Currently, patrons must be masked and fully vaccinated with an FDA-authorized vaccine to attend an indoor performance and must show proof of vaccination with their valid ticket to enter.
